The only additional features is that on the home page here in linked to the newConnections page to create a new connection.

I could not get the header to display the image inline with the name to create one line straight across. The homepage container is not working for the index.html page

I procrastinated on this project. The title said protype and mis took this assignment for what I was accustomed to doing for prototyping which is much less involved. To overcome this obstacle I stayed up last night finishing the website to turn in today(Saturday).
